Dear Shri Nanj Palavadi,

As you may be aware that the Department of Administrative Reforms & Public Grievance facilitates pursuit of excellence in governance for the benefit of citizens, which interalia includes documentation and dissemination of good practices for wider replication and igniting minds for further innovations by the Civil Servants.

2. A number of reforms have been ushered, several innovative ideas put into practice and a number of initiatives of the Civil Servants have brought in a paradigm shift in governance and public services delivery. The contribution of Civil Servants has been acknowledged and duly recognized at various forums including Prime Minister's Awards for Excellence in Public Administration, National e-Governance Awards and others.

3. For the benefit of students of Public Administration and young Civil Servants, this year we intend to document all such outstanding initiatives at one place and publish them in the form of a book titled, "Journey of Excellence in Governance". The proposed compilation would be a valuable learning resource and it would guide the next generations of Civil Servants to further better the Governance and delivery of public service in accordance with the modern developments and changing expectations of the citizens.

4. In this book we intend to include the first person narrative of the Civil Servants on such initiatives, beginning with the need, how the solution was conceived, executed/implemented and furthered before gaining acceptance and being replicated widely. While all such outstanding initiatives will be considered for publication, priority will be given to all the PM Awarded and National eGovernance Awarded initiatives. The initiatives that have been conferred PM Awards on Civil Services Day, 2015 (Year 2012-13) onwards will be included in the publication. A list of the Prime Minister's Awarded initiatives is attached with this letter.
